

The Sun.

VOL. XII.—NO. 291.

THE PLAY FROM REAL LIFE.

REHEARSAL YESTERDAY BEFORE THE COMMITTEE.

Frank Moulton at work on his Part of the Drama He Intends to Act the Bossed Peasemaking Dr. Storrs Declines to Appear—An Interview with Dr. Storrs.

No date is yet fixed for the committee to begin their labors, but several members said yesterday that they thought a verdict would be reached by the middle of next week, after which the scandal will move through the courts. The progress of the proceedings yesterday was due to the number of pages Mr. Frank Moulton wrote in the statement that he expected to make before the committee tomorrow morning. Mr. Moulton remained at No. 40 Robinson street all day, it was not of the time near the safe that contains the documents of the statements which is expected soon from him.

The correspondence which was printed yesterday was a continuation of the talk in general of the two parties and in the Plymouth Church circles. One of the counsels informed Mr. Moulton in harsh words for uncharitable references in his letters. "See this," said he, taking a morning paper. "Moulton writes:

"Friends like us, it is true, from our better and sincerer sources, are not to be gainsaid, but I know my reputation. I suppose he knew that I was friendly toward him, and he knew that I was a friend of Theodore. Putting such things to me, I consider that he intended to serve him in his arraignment."

comes to me, and leave the committee and the public to make their own inferences.

Reporter—Yet you cannot be a stranger to the kind of impression that these papers are likely to give.

Mr. Moulton—I have my own opinion on that subject; but let me suggest that they are the kind of impression that has called many men to justice, and he is quite a good a judge as I am.

Reporter—Up to the present time you have been in a position to sit upon your actions quietly in mind in peace between Mr. Beecher and Mr. Titon.

Mr. Moulton—That you have undoubtedly done, and that, strange as it may appear to you, I shall continue to do.

Reporter—You still believe in the possibility of compromise, my dear sir?

Mr. Moulton—No compromise, my dear sir, the removal of imminent collisions and the right realization of some of your demands, but nothing more than that, from the beginning.

Reporter—I am for peace, and I never despair of maintaining it in the end.

Mr. Moulton—You have no hope to achieve such result in this case?

Mr. Moulton—In this the world would perhaps be in the accomplishment of my purpose.

Reporter—You have been a friend of Theodore Titon from boyhood?

Mr. Moulton—I have. We went to college together.

Reporter—How long have you been intimate with Mr. Titon? Since 1838, I think.

Mr. Moulton—Then you were acquainted with Mr. Beecher about the time of the commencement of the Civil War, Mr. Titon?

Mr. Moulton—Yes; but for the trouble I should probably never have been intimate with Mr. Beecher. I don't know what you mean by "trouble." I suppose you mean a personal trouble.

Reporter—You have been a friend of Theodore Titon from boyhood?

Mr. Moulton—I have. We went to college together.

Reporter—How long have you been intimate with Mr. Titon? Since 1838, I think.

Mr. Moulton—Then you were acquainted with Mr. Beecher about the time of the commencement of the Civil War, Mr. Titon?

Mr. Moulton—Yes; but for the trouble I should probably never have been intimate with Mr. Beecher. I don't know what you mean by "trouble."

Reporter—You have been a friend of Theodore Titon from boyhood?

Mr. Moulton—I have. We went to college together.

Reporter—How long have you been intimate with Mr. Titon? Since 1838, I think.

Mr. Moulton—Then you were acquainted with Mr. Beecher about the time of the commencement of the Civil War, Mr. Titon?

Mr. Moulton—Yes; but for the trouble I should probably never have been intimate with Mr. Beecher. I don't know what you mean by "trouble."

Reporter—You have been a friend of Theodore Titon from boyhood?

Mr. Moulton—I have. We went to college together.

Reporter—How long have you been intimate with Mr. Titon? Since 1838, I think.

Mr. Moulton—Then you were acquainted with Mr. Beecher about the time of the commencement of the Civil War, Mr. Titon?

Mr. Moulton—Yes; but for the trouble I should probably never have been intimate with Mr. Beecher. I don't know what you mean by "trouble."

Reporter—You have been a friend of Theodore Titon from boyhood?

Mr. Moulton—I have. We went to college together.

Reporter—How long have you been intimate with Mr. Titon? Since 1838, I think.

Mr. Moulton—Then you were acquainted with Mr. Beecher about the time of the commencement of the Civil War, Mr. Titon?

Mr. Moulton—Yes; but for the trouble I should probably never have been intimate with Mr. Beecher. I don't know what you mean by "trouble."

Reporter—You have been a friend of Theodore Titon from boyhood?

Mr. Moulton—I have. We went to college together.

Reporter—How long have you been intimate with Mr. Titon? Since 1838, I think.

Mr. Moulton—Then you were acquainted with Mr. Beecher about the time of the commencement of the Civil War, Mr. Titon?

Mr. Moulton—Yes; but for the trouble I should probably never have been intimate with Mr. Beecher. I don't know what you mean by "trouble."

Reporter—You have been a friend of Theodore Titon from boyhood?

Mr. Moulton—I have. We went to college together.

Reporter—How long have you been intimate with Mr. Titon? Since 1838, I think.

Mr. Moulton—Then you were acquainted with Mr. Beecher about the time of the commencement of the Civil War, Mr. Titon?

Mr. Moulton—Yes; but for the trouble I should probably never have been intimate with Mr. Beecher. I don't know what you mean by "trouble."

Reporter—You have been a friend of Theodore Titon from boyhood?

Mr. Moulton—I have. We went to college together.

Reporter—How long have you been intimate with Mr. Titon? Since 1838, I think.

Mr. Moulton—Then you were acquainted with Mr. Beecher about the time of the commencement of the Civil War, Mr. Titon?

Mr. Moulton—Yes; but for the trouble I should probably never have been intimate with Mr. Beecher. I don't know what you mean by "trouble."

Reporter—You have been a friend of Theodore Titon from boyhood?

Mr. Moulton—I have. We went to college together.

Reporter—How long have you been intimate with Mr. Titon? Since 1838, I think.

Mr. Moulton—Then you were acquainted with Mr. Beecher about the time of the commencement of the Civil War, Mr. Titon?

Mr. Moulton—Yes; but for the trouble I should probably never have been intimate with Mr. Beecher. I don't know what you mean by "trouble."

Reporter—You have been a friend of Theodore Titon from boyhood?

Mr. Moulton—I have. We went to college together.

Reporter—How long have you been intimate with Mr. Titon? Since 1838, I think.

Mr. Moulton—Then you were acquainted with Mr. Beecher about the time of the commencement of the Civil War, Mr. Titon?

Mr. Moulton—Yes; but for the trouble I should probably never have been intimate with Mr. Beecher. I don't know what you mean by "trouble."

Reporter—You have been a friend of Theodore Titon from boyhood?

Mr. Moulton—I have. We went to college together.

Reporter—How long have you been intimate with Mr. Titon? Since 1838, I think.

Mr. Moulton—Then you were acquainted with Mr. Beecher about the time of the commencement of the Civil War, Mr. Titon?

Mr. Moulton—Yes; but for the trouble I should probably never have been intimate with Mr. Beecher. I don't know what you mean by "trouble."

Reporter—You have been a friend of Theodore Titon from boyhood?

Mr. Moulton—I have. We went to college together.

Reporter—How long have you been intimate with Mr. Titon? Since 1838, I think.

Mr. Moulton—Then you were acquainted with Mr. Beecher about the time of the commencement of the Civil War, Mr. Titon?

Mr. Moulton—Yes; but for the trouble I should probably never have been intimate with Mr. Beecher. I don't know what you mean by "trouble."

Reporter—You have been a friend of Theodore Titon from boyhood?

Mr. Moulton—I have. We went to college together.

Reporter—How long have you been intimate with Mr. Titon? Since 1838, I think.

Mr. Moulton—Then you were acquainted with Mr. Beecher about the time of the commencement of the Civil War, Mr. Titon?

Mr. Moulton—Yes; but for the trouble I should probably never have been intimate with Mr. Beecher. I don't know what you mean by "trouble."

Reporter—You have been a friend of Theodore Titon from boyhood?

Mr. Moulton—I have. We went to college together.

Reporter—How long have you been intimate with Mr. Titon? Since 1838, I think.

Mr. Moulton—Then you were acquainted with Mr. Beecher about the time of the commencement of the Civil War, Mr. Titon?

Mr. Moulton—Yes; but for the trouble I should probably never have been intimate with Mr. Beecher. I don't know what you mean by "trouble."

Reporter—You have been a friend of Theodore Titon from boyhood?

Mr. Moulton—I have. We went to college together.

Reporter—How long have you been intimate with Mr. Titon? Since 1838, I think.

Mr. Moulton—Then you were acquainted with Mr. Beecher about the time of the commencement of the Civil War, Mr. Titon?

Mr. Moulton—Yes; but for the trouble I should probably never have been intimate with Mr. Beecher. I don't know what you mean by "trouble."

Reporter—You have been a friend of Theodore Titon from boyhood?

Mr. Moulton—I have. We went to college together.

Reporter—How long have you been intimate with Mr. Titon? Since 1838, I think.

Mr. Moulton—Then you were acquainted with Mr. Beecher about the time of the commencement of the Civil War, Mr. Titon?

Mr. Moulton—Yes; but for the trouble I should probably never have been intimate with Mr. Beecher. I don't know what you mean by "trouble."

Reporter—You have been a friend of Theodore Titon from boyhood?

Mr. Moulton—I have. We went to college together.

Reporter—How long have you been intimate with Mr. Titon? Since 1838, I think.

Mr. Moulton—Then you were acquainted with Mr. Beecher about the time of the commencement of the Civil War, Mr. Titon?

Mr. Moulton—Yes; but for the trouble I should probably never have been intimate with Mr. Beecher. I don't know what you mean by "trouble."

Reporter—You have been a friend of Theodore Titon from boyhood?

Mr. Moulton—I have. We went to college together.

Reporter—How long have you been intimate with Mr. Titon? Since 1838, I think.

Mr. Moulton—Then you were acquainted with Mr. Beecher about the time of the commencement of the Civil War, Mr. Titon?

Mr. Moulton—Yes; but for the trouble I should probably never have been intimate with Mr. Beecher. I don't know what you mean by "trouble."

Reporter—You have been a friend of Theodore Titon from boyhood?

Mr. Moulton—I have. We went to college together.

THE LAURELS OF THE TURF.

SPLendid Sport at the Buffalo Driving Park Meeting.

The Betting Men Wagering Their Money on the Losin' Horses—A Sharp Contest in the Second Race—Chasing Drives Again.

BUFFALO, Aug. 6.—In the 2:38 race sixteen horses were entered and fourteen started. Smugler and Moille being drawn, Bella won the pole and Frank second. The word was given on the sixth stroke, Kitty took the lead and was eight lengths ahead at the quarter, with Bella second, Kitty kept the lead round the track and won in half a length, in 22:29, with Magnolia second, Mandine Rata third. In the second heat the horses went off at the second attempt. At the quarter Kitty took the lead with Bella second, Bella driving. Bella then led the race, with Magnolia, who was then in front, and Frank third. At the half pole Magnolia led, with Bella and Kitty side by side. At the third heat Magnolia led, with Bella and Frank third. Bella won the race, with Magnolia second, and Frank third, in 22:30. Bella came home with a lead, and the distance was gradually increased, so that when the finish was reached, Bella had a clear lead.

In the fourth heat Magnolia was leading at the quarter, with Bella second, Kitty third. Magnolia led the race, with Bella and Frank third. Bella won the race, with Magnolia second, and Frank third, in 22:31. Bella came home with a lead, and the distance was gradually increased, so that when the finish was reached, Bella had a clear lead.

In the fifth heat Magnolia was leading at the quarter, with Bella second, and Frank third. Magnolia led the race, with Bella and Frank third. Bella won the race, with Magnolia second, and Frank third, in 22:32. Bella came home with a lead, and the distance was gradually increased, so that when the finish was reached, Bella had a clear lead.

In the sixth heat Magnolia was leading at the quarter, with Bella second, and Frank third. Magnolia led the race, with Bella and Frank third. Bella won the race, with Magnolia second, and Frank third, in 22:33. Bella came home with a lead, and the distance was gradually increased, so that when the finish was reached, Bella had a clear lead.

In the seventh heat Magnolia was leading at the quarter, with Bella second, and Frank third. Magnolia led the race, with Bella and Frank third. Bella won the race, with Magnolia second, and Frank third, in 22:34. Bella came home with a lead, and the distance was gradually increased, so that when the finish was reached, Bella had a clear lead.

In the eighth heat Magnolia was leading at the quarter, with Bella second, and Frank third. Magnolia led the race, with Bella and Frank third. Bella won the race, with Magnolia second, and Frank third, in 22:35. Bella came home with a lead, and the distance was gradually increased, so that when the finish was reached, Bella had a clear lead.

In the ninth heat Magnolia was leading at the quarter, with Bella second, and Frank third. Magnolia led the race, with Bella and Frank third. Bella won the race, with Magnolia second, and Frank third, in 22:36. Bella came home with a